ABOUT ACSIS®

AFRICAN CARIBBEAN SUSTAINABILITY & INVESTMENT SUMMIT

The African Caribbean Sustainability & Investment Summit (ACSIS) was created to bridge the historical, cultural, and economic ties between Africa and the Caribbean, fostering meaningful dialogue, collaboration, and action. Despite shared heritage and mutual interests, both regions have often been separated by geography and fragmented global systems of a past world under colonial rule.

This summit provides a much-needed platform to unify efforts, amplify voices, and address challenges such as economic disparity, climate resilience, and global representation. It convenes leaders, innovators, investors, and communities to co-create sustainable solutions, celebrate cultural richness, and unlock collective potential.

By facilitating partnerships and exchanging knowledge, the summit aims to shift narratives, promote self-determination, and generate tangible impact across sectors like science & technology, healthcare, urban and rural development, finance, and looks at restoration and reparative justice. ACSIS is a movement toward global solidarity, empowering and uniting Afro-descendant communities to shape their own futures and drive transformative change across the diaspora and the world.

MISSION

- Our mission at ACSIS is to connect, empower, and elevate African and Caribbean communities globally by fostering partnerships, driving innovation, and advancing economic, social, and cultural development through high-impact dialogue and collaboration.

VISION

- A unified African and Caribbean global community thriving through shared prosperity, self-determination, and sustainable development - where voices are heard, legacies honoured, and futures shaped together.

OBJECTIVES

- Highlight the diaspora's vital role in driving sustainable development and climate action across Africa and the Caribbean.
- Strengthen partnerships between the diaspora, local businesses, organizations, and governments to expand opportunities for ACSIS members.
- Build collaboration with the African Union, Commonwealth Secretariat, and OECS to advance shared diasporic goals through dialogue and knowledge exchange.

ACSIS is more than a summit, it is a movement. Together, we shape pathways for sustainable growth, investment readiness, innovation, and trade that link continents, cultures, and communities.

FOREWORD FROM THE CHAIRMAN & FOUNDER OF ACSIS

“Together, let us build bridges strong enough to carry opportunity, resilient enough to weather uncertainty, and wide enough for many to cross.” - David F. Roberts

Dear Delegates, Partners, and Friends,

It is my honour to welcome you to the African Caribbean Sustainability & Investment Summit (ACSIS) 2025 in London. This convening is more than dialogue; it is decisive action—where Africa, the Caribbean, and our global diaspora align ambition with execution, capital with credibility, and innovation with inclusive impact.

We begin by acknowledging the untimely departure of Dr. Michelle Moseley, our former Deputy Chair and we warmly welcome our new and vibrant Deputy Chairman, Mr. Derrick Cobbinah, whose logistics expertise, service ethos, and diaspora-trade leadership will strengthen delivery as we scale.

Over the next two days, you will engage leaders across government, business, academia, and civil society—united in advancing sustainable development, strengthening investment flows, and building resilient futures for generations to come.

Our deep gratitude goes to our Diamond Sponsor, Afreximbank, and to our Sponsorship Partner, the CARICOM Development Fund (CDF), alongside our diplomatic partners, chambers of commerce, and private-sector sponsors. We thank our distinguished speakers, facilitators, and volunteers, whose contributions ensure that ACSIS 2025 is a space for meaningful exchange and lasting outcomes.

A significant addition this year is the expanded ACSIS Deal Room—a curated, results-focused marketplace featuring sector clusters, timed pitches, moderated Q&A, and pre-scheduled 1:1 meetings, followed by data-room introductions to accelerate diligence from conversation to term sheets.

This Programme is not just a keepsake; it is a guide for continued connection. May the conversations begun here become transformative partnerships long after the closing session.

On behalf of the ACSIS Executive team, thank you for investing your time and expertise. Let us move forward with courage, creativity, and commitment.

With appreciation and resolve,

David F. Roberts
Founder & Chairman

African Caribbean Sustainability & Investment Summit (ACSIS)

FOREWORD FROM THE DEPUTY-CHAIR OF ACSIS

It is an honor to welcome you to ACSIS –a convergence of visionary leaders, entrepreneurs, and advocates dedicated to forging pathways toward sustainable prosperity and shared growth.

In an era where climate resilience, economic empowerment, and cross-continental collaboration are imperative, this summit emerges as a beacon of opportunity. It unites the vibrant energies of Africa and the Caribbean, harnessing our collective ingenuity to address global challenges while unlocking untapped potential. From renewable energy initiatives to innovative trade partnerships, we are here to chart a course that benefits our peoples and preserves our planet for generations to come.

As Deputy Chair of this summit and President of the Ghana-Jamaica Chamber of Commerce, my vision is to create a vital gateway connecting our partners to the wider regions. Strategic alignment is crucial for boosting intraregional investments, fostering cultural exchanges, and driving economic growth. By harnessing our dynamic market's robust infrastructure and entrepreneurial spirit, we can unlock immense potential and drive advancements in key sectors like agriculture, technology, and tourism, benefiting all participating territories.

This vision echoes the pioneering efforts of our forefathers, Marcus Garvey and Kwame Nkrumah, who championed Pan-Africanism and unity across the diaspora. Their legacy of self-determination and solidarity inspires us to build on that foundation, transforming historical ties into modern, actionable alliances.

May this summit ignite collaborations that transcend borders, spark sustainable innovations, and create lasting impact. Together, we can realize a future where Africa and the Caribbean thrive in harmony.

On behalf of the organizing team, I extend my heartfelt gratitude for your participation, wisdom, and unwavering commitment to this noble cause.

With hope and determination,

Derrick Cobbinah
Deputy Chairperson

African Caribbean Sustainability & Investment Summit (ACSIS)

FOREWORD FROM THE CREATIVE DIRECTOR OF ACSIS

Attendees, Partners & Supporters,

It is a privilege to welcome you to ACSIS 2025 here in London – a gathering of innovators and change-makers committed to shaping a more sustainable and equitable future for all.

Our world stands at a crossroad where the urgency of environmental stewardship meets the promise of economic innovation. Across industries and beyond borders, the call for responsible and sustainable development has never been more important. Yet, the task before us extends beyond innovation alone; it requires collaboration, courage, and clear communication to succeed.

This summit was founded on the belief that sustainable development is not the work of one sector or one region, but a shared human endeavour. The African and Caribbean communities, with our rich histories of resilience, stand as powerful contributors to this global dialogue. By bridging ideas, investments, and initiatives, we can redefine what progress means. Our regions are not waiting for the world, we are actively reshaping our futures. Across the continents, we are reclaiming agency over our economies. Your presence at ACSIS 2025 is testament to this.

As the Creative lead since ACSIS' inception, I am particularly mindful of how ideas are translated into action. In our age of information, media and communication play a crucial role in making complex global issues accessible and engaging to all. When we tell our stories with clarity and empathy, we invite understanding, action, and unity.

May this summit serve as a catalyst for new partnerships, renewed commitments, and bold ideas that will carry us forward.

I thank you for your presence, your insight, and your shared dedication to creating a sustainable world.

With gratitude and optimism,

Aaron Adal
Creative Director

African Caribbean Sustainability & Investment Summit (ACSIS)

RECOGNITION OF THE ACSIS TEAM AND PLANNING COMMITTEE

No event of this scale and impact happens without the dedication, vision, and tireless efforts of an extraordinary team. The African Caribbean Sustainability & Investment Summit 2025 stands as a testament not only to the ideas shared here, but also to the people behind the scenes who brought this vision to life.

From the outset, the planning committee worked with meticulous care, ensuring that every detail—from speaker curation and panel design to logistics, sponsorships, and communications—aligned with the Summit's mission of fostering sustainable growth, investment, and inclusive collaboration across Africa, the Caribbean, and the diaspora. Their expertise, creativity, and unwavering commitment have made it possible for this summit to convene world-class leaders, innovators, and changemakers under one platform.

We extend our deepest gratitude to every member of the planning committee, the creative team, technical support, communications and marketing professionals, and all of our volunteers. Your collaborative spirit, resilience, and dedication ensured a seamless experience for participants and elevated ACSIS to an exceptional level of excellence. It is their work behind the scenes that has created the environment for ideas to flourish, partnerships to form, and action to take shape. On behalf of the entire ACSIS community, we celebrate and honour your contribution. This Summit would not have been possible without the dedication from our team across the globe.

SUMMIT TOPIC

FINANCIAL TECHNOLOGY

FINANCIAL TECHNOLOGY

THE FUTURE OF INNOVATION, INCLUSION AND IMPACT

Exploring how digital finance and robust cyber solutions are shaping inclusive economic growth across Africa and the Caribbean, with insights into Cross-Border Innovation, Digital ID, and Data Protection Frameworks.

At its core, we recognise that mobile banking, blockchain, AI-powered platforms and next-generation regulatory technologies are not merely incremental improvements—they are foundational shifts enabling underserved communities to participate meaningfully in global economies. The sessions cover seven critical focus areas: Digital Banking & Neobanks; Blockchain & Cryptocurrency; FinTech & Financial Inclusion; AI & Machine Learning in FinTech; RegTech/Cybersecurity; InsurTech; and WealthTech & Investment Platforms.

Digital Banking and Neobanks showcase how mobile-first platforms are closing traditional finance gaps. From peer-to-peer transfers to mobile wallets and micro-savings products, digital banks are democratizing access to financial services for both individuals and small enterprises in emerging markets. These tools are transforming payments, savings and credit into more inclusive and affordable forms.

Blockchain and Cryptocurrency sessions dive into the promise and the prudence of decentralised finance. Conversations will examine how blockchain technology can bolster transparency, decentralisation and trust, while exploring real-world use cases in remittances, cross-border trade, and financial identity. The risks of volatility, regulation and scalability will also be addressed.

FinTech & Financial Inclusion elevate case studies from both hemispheres, highlighting how women, rural communities, and informal sectors are being empowered through tailored fintech solutions. These models demonstrate that inclusive finance is a powerful engine of resilience and growth.

As fintech innovations accelerate, so does the need for RegTech and Cybersecurity. This component emphasises how regulatory technologies—for example with real-time compliance, fraud detection, governance platforms—play a crucial role in safeguarding trust, protecting data and enabling secure ecosystems

InsurTech (Insurance Technology) addresses one of the critical gaps in emerging markets: access to insurance and risk mitigation. Whether micro-insurance for underserved populations, climate-risk coverage, or parametric products tailored to local conditions, technology is making protection more accessible and relevant.

Finally, WealthTech and Investment Platforms highlight how new financial technology platforms are democratising wealth creation. From first-time savers to diaspora investors seeking access to African and Caribbean markets, these tools provide new pathways to participate in investment opportunities, previously dominated by institutional actors.

At ACSIS 2025, participants - whether startup founders, funders, policy-makers or changemakers - will find that this topic offers a dynamic movement with high opportunity for collaboration. A movement where ideas become networks, where networks become partnerships, and where partnerships lead to measurable impact. You will be discovering future technologies that are paving the new financial landscape of this decade.

DEVELOPMENT & RESILIENCE

DEVELOPMENT & RESILIENCE

FOSTERING INFRASTRUCTURE, URBAN DEVELOPMENT, FOOD, AND FOOD SECURITY IN OUR COMMUNITIES

Addressing Sustainable Infrastructure, Food Security, Water Security, Climate Resilience, and Economic Recovery, spotlighting strategies that empower communities to thrive.

Across cities, towns, and rural communities, governments and private partners are rethinking how to achieve long-term development. Investment in renewable energy, digital infrastructure, transport, and housing is improving access to opportunity and creating employment. This session highlights examples of national strategies and regional partnerships that are transforming the development landscape through smart planning and inclusive growth.

Food Systems and Agricultural Resilience are vital for sustainable growth across Africa and the Caribbean. By advancing climate-smart farming, strengthening value chains, and improving access to technology and finance, both regions can boost food security and economic stability. This focus area highlights innovation and collaboration as key drivers of resilient, sustainable agriculture, open for investors.

Climate-Resilient Infrastructure explores solutions for building infrastructure and housing that withstand extreme weather and rising risks. Learn how communities are adopting design, materials, and policy innovations to protect lives and support sustainable growth, and associated investment opportunities available.

Energy and Water Security are essential foundations for sustainable development. Strengthening renewable energy systems, improving water management, and investing in resilient infrastructure can reduce vulnerability to climate change while driving inclusive growth across Africa and the Caribbean.

Trade, Transport & Regional integration highlights initiatives that connect markets, reduce costs, and strengthen collective growth across African and Caribbean nations. This session will examine how improved trade routes, logistics, and regional cooperation can boost economic resilience.

Urban Development & Inclusive showcases how cities are designing inclusive spaces that respond to rapid urbanisation, inequality, and climate change. Learn from planning models that prioritize equity, sustainability, and community participation.

Health Infrastructure & Disaster Preparedness reinforces how strong health systems and emergency readiness can reduce vulnerability and save lives. This session focuses on building facilities, systems, and partnerships that improve care and enhance crisis response – the importance of which was recently highlighted in the recent Hurricane Melissa in Jamaica.

At ACSIS 2025, participants from government leaders and business innovators to community advocates and researchers will find that this focus area represents a collective effort. An effort where knowledge becomes collaboration, collaboration sparks innovation, and innovation drives resilience. Together, we will explore strategies for development and a shared vision for sustainable growth and regional strength.

HEALTH & LIFE SCIENCES

HEALTH & LIFE SCIENCES

ADVANCING HEALTH EQUITY AND INNOVATION IN AFRICAN AND CARIBBEAN COMMUNITIES

Delving into regional advancements in Biotechnology, Public Health Systems, and Equitable Healthcare Access, focussing on Innovation, Indigenous Knowledge and Global Preparedness.

Health and life sciences stand at the heart of sustainable development across Africa and the Caribbean. In a rapidly changing world—marked by population growth, climate pressures, and evolving global health challenges; these regions are charting a new course built on innovation, resilience, and collaboration.

Across Africa, the Caribbean and their diasporas, advancing health and life-science innovation is central to sustainable growth. In this session we explore how strategic investment, scientific breakthroughs and equitable systems are opening new frontiers in biotechnology, public-health infrastructure and inclusive care.

Climate Change and Health investigates how rising temperatures, extreme weather, and ecological shifts are impacting public health. This session highlights climate-related illnesses, health infrastructure resilience, and climate-smart health systems being pioneered in Africa and the Caribbean.

Healthcare Access and Structural Barriers examines the systemic challenges that limit equitable healthcare access, including rural isolation, financing gaps, and digital divides. Discover strategies to dismantle these barriers and build inclusive health ecosystems.

Health Policy and Global Diplomacy explores the power of cross-border health collaboration, policy innovation, and international frameworks. Learn how regional voices are shaping global agendas and securing partnerships to strengthen public health systems.

Traditional and Indigenous Practices reconnects with indigenous healing knowledge and traditional health systems that continue to serve communities. This session explores the integration of cultural practices into modern healthcare for more holistic, community-rooted solutions.

Mental Health & Historical Trauma addresses the often-overlooked impacts of colonisation, displacement, and socioeconomic inequity on mental wellbeing. This session centres culturally competent care models and trauma-informed mental health strategies.

Chronic Disease Disparities highlights that the disproportionate burden of non-communicable diseases like diabetes, hypertension, and cancer in African and Caribbean populations. This session spotlights prevention, early detection, and tailored health tech innovations.

At ACSIS 2025, innovation meets inclusion – advancing biotechnology, digital health, and resilient care systems that strengthen both people and economies. Participants will uncover the future of health and life sciences, with a new financial landscape for good, where progress and purpose move forward together.

REPARATIONS & REPARATIVE JUSTICE

REPARATIONS & REPARATIVE JUSTICE

HEALING HISTORICAL INJUSTICES

Engaging in critical dialogue on Historical Justice, Economic Redress, and Cultural Restitution, linking Policy, Activism, and Global Advocacy for people of African and Caribbean ancestry.

This is not just about the past, it's about creating a just and sustainable future. Engage with thought leaders, activists, and policymakers working to turn advocacy into action and restitution into real-world impact. Discover how these efforts open doors for investment, education, and global collaboration. Your voice and vision are needed in this transformative dialogue.

Reparations and reparative justice are gaining global attention as essential pathways to address historical inequities and foster sustainable social and economic transformation in Africa and the Caribbean. By acknowledging past injustices and investing in initiatives that promote equity, education, wealth creation, and community empowerment, these efforts strengthen social cohesion and create opportunities for inclusive growth. Across the region, innovative policies, community-led programs, and cross-border partnerships are paving the way for meaningful impact, positioning reparative justice as both a moral imperative and a strategic avenue for long-term development.

Historical Context and Justification unpacks the legacy of transatlantic slavery, colonialism, and exploitation and the case for reparations. This session explores the historical foundations, moral imperatives, and global precedents that underpin contemporary claims for justice and accountability.

Economic Justice and Equity focuses on tangible mechanisms for wealth redistribution and economic empowerment. This session explores proposals for debt relief, trade reparations, investment in development funds, and strategies to redress structural inequality.

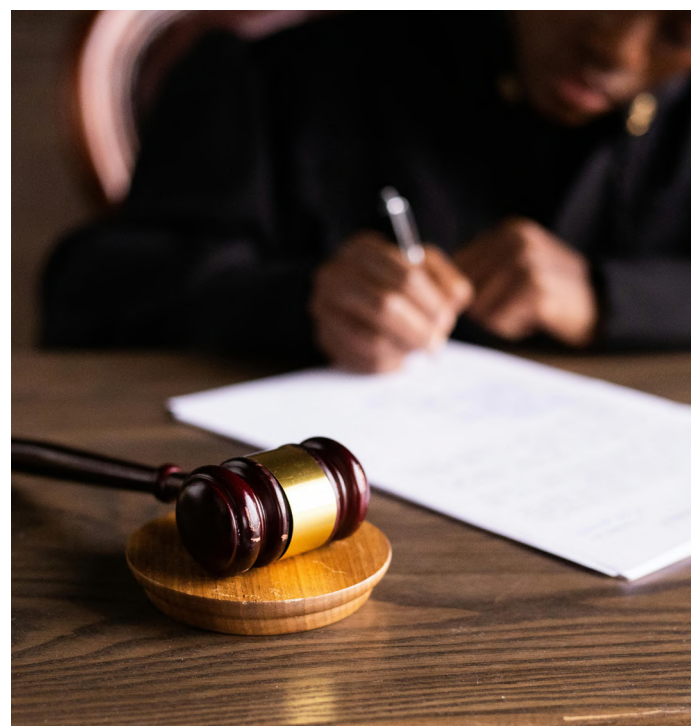

Restitution and Cultural Reclamation explores efforts to return looted artefacts, archives, and heritage to African and Caribbean nations. This session highlights museum negotiations, memory work, and cultural healing as key components of reparation and dignity restoration.

Psychological and Intergenerational Impact acknowledges the trauma carried across generations and the urgent need for psychological healing. This session explores mental health, identity, and education as tools to confront erasure and restore cultural pride and agency.

Opposition and Public Discourses address the resistance and myths surrounding reparations. This session equips advocates to respond to backlash, challenge misinformation, and reshape public understanding through data, storytelling, and inclusive messaging.

Contemporary Models and Global Movements show the way, helping us to learn from successful campaigns in Africa, the Caribbean, Europe, and the Americas. This session showcases modern strategies from city-led reparative funds to corporate restitution and highlights the role of diasporic unity in scaling impact.

At ACSIS 2025, justice meets opportunity, advancing reparative initiatives, policy innovation, and community-led solutions that strengthen social equity and economic resilience. Participants will explore the future of reparations and reparative justice and a new domain for investment and collaboration where accountability, empowerment, and impact move forward together.

AC SIS PROJECTS

WORLD REPARATIONS CONFERENCE

PURPOSE

The World Reparations Conference (WRC) mission is to convene global stakeholders – Governments, Civil Society, Academia, Private Sector, and the African and Caribbean diasporas – for a focused, strategic dialogue on advancing reparations and restitution efforts rooted in historical truth, collective dignity, and intergenerational justice.

2025 EVENT HIGHLIGHTS

The first ACSIS WRC was hosted this year at the House of Lords, Parliament Square, London (25th September 2025). The WRC launched its “Pathways to Reparative Justice” session under the theme “Truth, Dignity, and Repair – For Generations to Come,” convening activists, policymakers, economists, and business leaders to shape practical frameworks addressing the enduring legacies of slavery and colonialism. Founding Chair David F. Roberts called for a structured, youth-led agenda and recognised Parliament’s historic role. Moderator Chris Desai pressed for measurable outcomes and urgent implementation.

Speakers including Bell Ribeiro-Addy MP (Chair, APPG on Afrikan Reparations), Esther Xosei (reparationist, jurisconsult), and Dr R. David Muir (Cambridge)–stressed that reparations must extend beyond finance to education reform, systemic change, and restored dignity. Ibukun Adebayo (CEO, Restitution Capital) linked high borrowing costs and “corruption premiums” in emerging markets to colonial legacies, urging reparative economic frameworks centred on transparency and sustainable growth.

Personal reflections from Heirs of Slavery, led by co-founder John Dower, brought descendants of enslavers into dialogue with descendants of enslaved peoples, underlining the moral complexity of repair.

Deliberations examined: the economics of reparations and corporate accountability; the case for a national programme—including Haiti’s historic extraction, outlined by Dr Kridikel Truthbey (Sixth Region, USA); community-led approaches to inclusion; and the role of institutions—from Parliament and the Church to media such as The Guardian—in acknowledging and addressing ties to slavery.

Contributions from Timi Okuwa (Black Equity Organisation) and Joseph Harker (The Guardian; Legacies of Enslavement) reinforced commitments to transparency and reform.

The session closed with a collective call to policymakers, business, and diaspora communities to collaborate on education, equity, and empowerment—ensuring reparative justice translates into tangible economic and social outcomes.

ONLINE WEBINAR, CONNECTING THE REGIONS VIRTUALLY

PURPOSE

ACSIS EXCHANGE is a multi-session webinar series designed to connect African and Caribbean project developers, policymakers, and capital providers with practical insights that shorten the path from concept to bankability to investment. The series builds deal-readiness, showcases investable opportunities, and strengthens cross-regional collaboration.

WHO IT'S FOR

Project developers, DFIs, family offices, PE/VC funds, banks, corporate venture teams, trade/investment agencies, diaspora investors, professional services (legal, advisory), and ecosystem enablers.

The five most recent ACSIS EXCHANGE webinars (from the ACSIS YouTube channel), with dates and themes:

- 2 Oct 2025 – Creative & Cultural Industries (Vol II): A focus on how the creative economy drives investable, inclusive growth across Africa-Caribbean markets. (10th Edition).
- 18 Sept 2025 – Food & Food Security (Vol II): Deep dive on food sovereignty, agri-value chains, and resilient supply systems (9th Edition).

- 4 Sept 2025 – Reparations & Reparative Justice: Policy, finance, and development perspectives linking historical justice to modern capital flows (8th Edition).
- 21 Aug 2025 – Health & Life Sciences (II): Innovation, investment, and regulation shaping healthcare and biotech collaborations (7th Edition).
- 9 Aug 2025 – FinTech & Cybersecurity: Cross-border payments, digital asset security, and investor readiness for fintech ventures (6th Edition).

Series snapshot: The latest run charts a coherent arc from financing tangible sectors (food systems and health) to enabling ecosystems (fintech security) and high-growth cultural industries, with reparative justice providing a vital policy lens.

Collectively, these sessions highlight investable pipelines, de-risking tools, and regulatory pathways while nurturing Africa-Caribbean deal flow.

For each edition, ACSIS pairs specialist speakers with moderated Q&A and follow-on materials, aligning promoters with investor expectations and the ACSIS Deal Room criteria.

ACSIS Exchange is a platform for African, Caribbean, and British policymakers, business leaders, and investors to exchange insights, share best practices, and explore opportunities for sustainable trade and investment.

ACSIS DEAL ROOM

DIRECT OPPORTUNITIES FOR INVESTORS & BUSINESS

PURPOSE

The Deal Room at ACSIS 2025 is the Summit's platform for real transactions and strategic partnerships. Here, innovators and project leaders from Africa, the Caribbean, and the diaspora engage directly with investors, funds, and corporate stakeholders to pitch, negotiate, and unlock growth opportunities. It's where collaboration turns into capital and ideas evolve into investable ventures.

WHAT MEMBERS GAIN

- Cross-Regional Collaboration & Market Access – Build bridges between African and Caribbean markets, opening doors to new trade channels, diaspora capital, and co-investment opportunities across both regions.
- Access to Capital & Partnerships – Step into a curated environment where global investors, development funds, and corporate leaders are actively seeking opportunities to fund, mentor, and scale promising ventures.
- Exclusive Exposure for Investment-Ready Projects – Showcase your project or business in front of decision-makers who can accelerate your growth through equity investment, joint ventures, or strategic partnerships.
- Direct Path from Vision to Transaction Move beyond Networking – this is where deals are structured, MoUs are signed, and funding commitments begin.
- Aligned with Sustainable Impact – Every opportunity in the Deal Room is curated with sustainability, inclusivity, and innovation at its core – ensuring that every deal contributes to long-term growth and shared prosperity.
- Curated Matchmaking & 1-on-1 Meetings Get matched with investors and partners aligned with your goals and industry.

Empowering African-Caribbean collaboration through investment, innovation, and impact. Where vision meets capital and partnerships drive sustainable growth.
